Enterra Solutions Strengthens Port and Intermodal Transportation Security Business with Acquisition of Cincinnati Consulting

RESTON, Va. (February 25, 2008) – Enterra Solutions, LLC, announced today that it has acquired Cincinnati Consulting LLC, a Philadelphia-based consulting firm specializing in security for critical infrastructure and intermodal transportation. Cincinnati Consulting’s staff has extensive experience in integrated security assessments, analysis and oversight, along with complementary skills in project management, political advocacy, maritime and port security. Cincinnati clients include local, regional and national government agencies that operate or own critical intermodal transportation infrastructure.

Through this acquisition, Enterra Solutions expands and strengthens its Philadelphia regional presence and its focus and capabilities in integrated security systems and intermodal transportation, particularly in the port and maritime domain. The added skills and experience will enable Enterra Solutions to provide a more complete array of tools and services to its clients and to enhance its product content.

Both companies are active in the field of strengthening homeland security by improving prevention, response and mitigation capabilities. The combination of the two organizations builds upon common goals and broadens the range of their joint knowledge base. Enterra Solutions will expand Cincinnati’s scope of operations by bringing them into Enterra Solutions’ International Security Affairs Practice Group.

“With this acquisition, Enterra Solutions strengthens its security and maritime-related capabilities,” said Stephen DeAngelis, president and CEO of Enterra Solutions. “Cincinnati Consulting gives us a means to accelerate and diversify our growth. The added skill sets enhance our already strong team and increase our competitiveness, particularly with respect to improved port operations, security and integration of maritime domain awareness. It also strengthens our presence and reach in the tri-state area.”

Enterra Solutions is currently working with Holt Logistics, operator of the Port of Philadelphia as a model for an international Trusted Port and Maritime Domain Awareness System for ports and intermodal transportation operators worldwide.

Commenting on the acquisition, Andre Stephano, managing partner of Cincinnatus Consulting, said, “Both our organizations are dynamic and create advanced integrated security solutions, manage government relations processes and projects to fully execute engagements with our clients and have successfully implemented security improvements to national and regional critical infrastructure, on which we all depend. We are very excited to be joining forces with Enterra Solutions. Together we have more ways to expand our presence and get the job done.”

Cincinnatus Consulting will be operated under the Enterra Solutions’ brand.
