FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Admiral Harry Ulrich Joins Enterra Solutions as Executive Vice President
Ulrich to Lead International Security Affairs Practice

RESTON, Va. (February 20, 2008) – Enterra Solutions, LLC announced today that Admiral H. G. “Harry” Ulrich, III, USN (retired) has joined the company as the Executive Vice President in charge of its International Security Affairs Practice. Admiral Ulrich will be responsible for all aspects of Enterra Solutions’ International Security Affairs Practice which includes its Global Domain Awareness program as well as the company’s overall maritime product service offerings. Drawing on his extensive background and expertise, he will continue to provide thought leadership in the maritime community.

Admiral Ulrich joins Enterra Solutions following a distinguished 35-year military career. During his last assignment, Admiral Ulrich served as Commander, U.S. Naval Forces Europe and Commander, Allied Joint Force Command Naples. As Commander U.S. Naval Forces Europe, he was responsible for providing overall command, operational control and coordination of U.S. Naval forces in the European Command area of responsibility. As Commander, Allied Joint Force Command Naples, Admiral Ulrich had operational responsibility for NATO missions in the Balkans, Iraq and the Mediterranean.

“We are pleased and excited to have Harry join Enterra Solutions as a Senior Executive and the leader of our International Security Affairs Practice. Harry brings an unparalleled knowledge of maritime safety and security practices as well as developing country security and economic development issues. He is a proven visionary and manager and I look forward to his leadership as Enterra Solutions manages the rapid acceptance of our Development-in-a-Box™ and maritime safety and security systems and the accelerated growth of our business” said Stephen DeAngelis, Enterra Solutions President and Chief Executive Officer. “His thought leadership and operational experience in Europe and Africa will be invaluable to our International Security Practice clients in the United States and the nation states that we serve.”

“I am excited to join Enterra Solutions. I see the work I will be doing as a continuation of some of the initiatives I began during my tour in Europe,” said Admiral Ulrich. “Enterra Solutions is applying best practices and technology to help bring developing nations out of poverty through next generation systems for economic development and security. The company also has a clear understanding of the role maritime operations plays in the global economy and I will draw upon my experiences to make a contribution to those efforts. I look forward to partnering with Steve DeAngelis and the rest of Enterra Solutions’ senior management team in scaling up this rapidly growing company.”

A native of Southampton, Pa, Admiral Ulrich, a 1972 graduate of U.S. Naval Academy, served in a broad range of sea and shore assignments, including seven sea tours with units of the Atlantic Fleet. During those assignments, he participated in eight deployments to South America, West Africa, Northern and Southern Europe and the Arabian Gulf. Prior to his assignment as Commander, Naval Forces Europe, Admiral Ulrich served simultaneously as Commander, U.S. 6th Fleet; Commander, Naval Striking and Support Forces North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO); and Commander, Allied Joint Command Lisbon. Admiral Ulrich’s shore assignments included duty on the Joint Staff and the staff of the Chief of Naval Operations. He has served as Director of Cruise Missile Plans and Policy, as well as Director of Surface Warfare. In 2001, he was selected to lead the revolution in U.S. Navy training as Commander, Task Force Excel.
